I've spent the past forty years teaching and leading children into the baptism in the Holy Spirit. If there is one thing I have learned it is, "Children need God's power more than ever, right now!" So why wait until kids' camp this year before allowing your children to enter into the fullness of God's Spirit? You can lead them into this experience today.

The Baptism in the Holy Spirit

It's for kids too!

BY DICK GRUBER

Children and the baptism in the Holy Spirit

In Mark 1:8 (NIV), John the Baptist states, "I baptize you with water, but He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit." Jesus says in Acts 1:5 (NIV), "For John baptized with water, but in a few days you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit." What is the baptism in the Holy Spirit? In order to help children understand and receive, I first talk about what this experience is not. Years ago, one of my college professors spoke on five things the Holy Spirit is not. I've expanded that to the following teaching.

The baptism in the Holy Spirit is:

- Not the same as salvation. This is a separate and unique gift following conversion. (Acts 19:1-6)
- Not for adults only. This empowerment is for every believer. (Acts 2:39)

- Not natural. It is a supernatural experience. A child cannot be taught how to speak in tongues. Jesus is the baptizer. (Luke 3:16; Acts 1:4–8)
- Not just for Bible times. This experience is for today. (Acts 2:39)
- Not an experience where tongues are optional. Those baptized in the Spirit will receive power and a prayer language. Children take their cues from the adults around them and often pray to receive tongues. Encourage them to pray for more of God's Spirit and power. The tongues will follow. (Acts 1:8; 10:44–47)
- Not a sign that you have arrived. The baptism in the Holy Spirit is a beginning. The content of Acts occurred following Pentecost. The disciples prayed multiple times for more of God's Spirit. (Acts 2:4; 4:31)
- Not Scary. God will do nothing scary to a child. I've found that once children overcome the fear of the unknown, it is easy for them to be filled to overflowing with the Spirit. (1 John 4:16–18, 2 Timothy 1:7)

I trust you will set aside times in children's church to teach children about, and pray for, the baptism in the Holy Spirit. Providing children with regular opportunities to enter God's presence and seek more of His Spirit is part of a healthy children's program.

When praying with children for the baptism in the Holy Spirit:

- Let them come to Jesus. Praying for this should never be forced, rushed, or confusing. When children express a desire to receive, pray.
- Listen to them. Oftentimes, a child will have pressing prayer requests that are more important to her than being filled with the Spirit. Listen and pray about those felt needs first. Then pray about this gift.
- Let Jesus be the baptizer. You and I cannot baptize people of any age in God's Holy Spirit. You can't yell loud enough, shake hard enough, or hype yourself up enough to make God move any faster in a child's life. So relax. Trust that God knows exactly when the child is ready to receive. Be there to encourage and bless.
- Love them. Spend some time encouraging and showing love to boys and girls who have not yet received the Spirit. It is critical that children leaving the altar after extended prayer with no apparent result, be encouraged to walk away believing they should continue seeking this experience until it happens. (Luke 11:13).

Are You Willing to Pay the Price?

BY ROD LOY

One of the questions people often ask me is,
“How can I succeed?”

That’s quickly followed by several other questions:

“Why do some people seem to get all the breaks?”

“Why can’t I accomplish the things I want to?”

“Why do some people accomplish remarkable things, and other people don’t?”

I generally answer those questions with two questions of my own. First, “Are you doing what you love and loving what you do?” When you meet someone who’s a success, most of the time you’ll discover they love what they do. A gifted pianist practices the piano five hours a day, because they love to play the piano. A pastor who is making a difference in the community loves working with people and leading the church. A skilled artist loves painting.

Here’s a powerful principle: You’ll never fulfill your destiny doing something you despise. When you love what you do, your chance to do well is much greater. Not only will you do it well, but your passion will make you a contagious leader. When you love what you’re doing, God will bring other people around you who will love working alongside you.

On the other hand, if you continually do things you dislike, there’s a risk you’ll eventually compromise your integrity. Why? If you don’t like what you’re doing, you’ll be tempted to take shortcuts and take the easy way out.

Are there parts of my job I don’t enjoy? Sure. There are moments in pastoring and leading people that bring frustration instead of satisfaction. There are parts of the job that make me tired and angry. But, for the most part, what I do makes my heart sing. I look forward to getting up in the morning and going to the church. I look forward to weekend services with great anticipation. I enjoy leading and working with a team. I love working with people as they progress through their spiritual journey.

The second key question I ask people is, “Are you willing to pay the price of success?” It may seem like some people get all the lucky breaks, but that isn’t true. Over the years, I’ve learned a key to doing great things for God: You must be willing to pay the price.

This is the part of leadership and success people don’t like to talk about. This isn’t the fun part. We all enjoy the rewards. We look forward to the payoff. But this is the hard part: What’s the cost associated with pursuing your vision? The question is not, “What do you want to do?” The question is, “What will it take for you to do it?” Any vision worth pursuing demands sacrifice and risk.

Doing great things for God will always take you outside your comfort zone. There are many unknowns associated with leadership and pursuing a vision. There are countless things that can go wrong.

For a leader, risk and sacrifice are always associated with a vision. If God has birthed something in your heart, the day will come when you must sacrifice to achieve it. You’ll have to make that sacrifice with no guarantee of success. If the cost and the risk cause you to become uncertain in your commitment, you’ll fail. Furthermore, uncertainty in a leader is always magnified in the heart of a follower. If you aren’t sure if the sacrifice is worth the vision, the people around you won’t be willing to sacrifice for that vision.

We don’t like to talk about paying a price. We like to talk about receiving rewards. It’s much more popular to focus on what we’ll get, what we’ll accomplish, and what victory we’ll experience. But the fact is, there will be a price to pay. If you want to make a difference, if you want to fulfill God’s calling for your life, if you want to be a leader, you have to be willing to pay the price. This is the difference between changing the world and living your life without impact.

Helping Kids Experience the Significance of Easter

BY CHRIS CORBETT

GROWING UP IN A NON-CHRISTIAN HOME, Easter highlights consisted of coloring eggs, Easter baskets filled with candy, and embarrassing pictures with the Easter bunny.

My family knew Easter had something to do with Jesus but that knowledge did not make a difference in our celebration of the Easter holiday.

While coloring Easter eggs and waking up Easter morning to baskets filled with candy are wonderful, they must not distract from the true meaning of Easter. As leaders, we must ensure that the kids in our ministry understand the significance of Easter, and we must provide opportunities for the Holy Spirit to draw kids into a deeper relationship with their Savior.

Practical ways to help kids experience the significance of Easter

Imagine yourself standing on a hillside watching the crucifixion of Jesus and then walking to the tomb Easter morning and discovering the disappearance of the body of Jesus. How would you feel? What types of smells would you experience? What would you see?

Authors use a technique called “show, don’t tell” to enable the reader to experience the story through actions, words, senses, and emotions rather than through description and summary. The technique places the reader in the heart of the story as he or she feels what the character feels and experiences what the character experiences. “Show, don’t tell” brings the story to life for the reader, providing the reader with an opportunity to connect with the characters in the story at a deep level.

How do we help kids understand the significance of Easter and provide space for the Holy Spirit to move in the lives of the kids in our ministry? Here are three suggestions:

*While supplies last.

1 Tell the Easter story with the “show, don’t tell” technique. Help kids not only hear the story, but experience the story. Rather than saying, “the women cried,” paint a picture that allows kids to feel as if they were present in the story. Describe actions that suggest crying: perhaps the women fell to their knees or tears rolled down their face as soldiers led Jesus away. As kids are personally drawn into the story, the Word of God becomes alive and memorable, opening the door for the Holy Spirit to work.

2 Provide different prayer/response stations. Give kids an opportunity to journal, draw a picture, or respond to the Easter story in a creative hands-on way. A simple search on the Internet for “Easter prayer stations for kids” will provide you with several simple ideas.

3 Plan your Easter service with space for the Holy Spirit to work. Be careful about waiting until the end of the service, when you may run out of time.
